

I was singing at the school on Foutness island to-day and the assistant school teacher, Mrs. Nicholls, I think her name was, told me about the local step-dancing tradition on the island.
Died out now but ~~some~~ of the old step-dancers are still alive including this good lady's husband. Foutness having been under War Office control since 1920, but not being lived in by the army, the community of farmers etc, are rather cut off and are still something of a community. If you think Tom might be interested, would you send this P.C. on to him?
I haven't his address. If you decide to investigate, let me know and I'll see about

Dr Frank Rhodes
Department of Mathematics, Southampton University
SOUTHAMPTON